BY MARK HARRINGTON AND NIRAV DALAL
FightOnState.com Blitz Team

Nirav Dalal: The Lions return home licking their wounds after a heartbreaking last second loss to the Hawkeyes. However, the Rose Bowl and a Big Ten Championship is still within reach. As Joe Paterno pointed out, the seniors could leave with two Big Ten Championships in four years, which would be quite an accomplishment. This week, the Lions face an Indiana Hoosier team that has been playing poorly all season long after making it to a bowl game last year in honor of their late coach. But, there are still some playmakers that could give the Lions trouble if they are not focused.

Mark Harrington: It was definitely a painful loss for the Lions, but as you, the coaches and players have said all week, they still have a ton to play for. If most PSU fans were told back in August that this team would control its destiny to the Rose Bowl and Big Ten title, they'd likely be tripping over themselves in excitement. Now they head back home to close out the season and face the Hoosiers.

Other Big Games This Weekend:

ND: This week is one of my favorite trophy games – the battle for Paul Bunyon's Axe between the Minnesota Golden Gophers and the Wisconsin Badgers. The Big Ten is loaded with traditions and the trophy games are a key part of that. The Badgers are riding high after their big win against Indiana thanks to a powerful running attack behind John Clay and P.J. Hill. But, it was the running of WR Brandon Gilreath that was particularly surprising. He had 8 carries for 168 yards including one that covered 90 yards. The Madison faithful will be hopped up on Leinenkugels and should be able to see the home town pick up another "W" behind the running game, which is the way they like it.

MH: Ohio State travels to Illinois, where the schizophrenic 5-5 Illini need a win to become bowl eligible. The question is can they pull off some magic again, like last year, and knock off the Buckeyes? It should be interesting since the Zookers tend to get up for big games. Another big game, at least in terms of coaching futures, is Notre Dame at Navy. The heat is on Charlie Weis with a growing buzz of dissatisfaction in South Bend. According to observers of ND, if the Irish lose to Navy, all bets are off with Weis' job security.

Upset Special:

ND: Just as Penn State has the inside track to the Rose Bowl, so does Oregon State. The Beavers control their own destiny in a conference that is flat-out terrible. The Beavers still have to play at Arizona, which is never an easy game, and they have their Civil War rivalry game with in-state foe, Oregon. But, this week, they face the Cal Bears, who have a revolving door QB system. This week, it's Kevin Riley. I like Cal in this game to knock off the Beavers and give USC the advantage in the hunt for the Pac-10 title.

MH: Look to the south! No, it's not the Blue Band, it's the Florida State Seminoles who have snuck around this season at 7-2, yet no one is talking about them. Boston College is 6-3 and is looking to finish out with a statement. The 'Noles better be awake for this one.

Offense:

ND: Though Penn State introduced a couple of new wrinkles in the offense with the Wildcat formation to get the ball into Derrick Williams' hands, the Lions need to focus on run blocking and protection. The offensive line struggled mightily against Ohio State and the same was true this past Saturday. Teams are starting to find that different packages – blitzes and stunts – are giving ing the Lions more trouble than was the case earlier in the season. Evan Royster is a key component to the offense, and the Lions have to work better to open up holes. If that means playing more I-Formation, I think that's what they need to do to get more yards in the running attack. The Badgers pounded the rock against the Hoosiers and were very successful. The Lions need to stick with the run.

Though Daryll Clark is shouldering the blame for this game, not everything was his fault. The weather didn't help things, the play calling was bizarre at times, and Clark did take many hits against the Hawkeyes. Fortunately, he gets to come back into Beaver Stadium and play against one of the worst defenses in the country. The Hoosiers have given up more than 40 points on five occasions this year. This is a good game for Clark to get his confidence and rhythm back.

The Hoosiers do have a pretty good pass rush in Greg Middleton, who led the country in sacks last year, and James Kirlaw. Clark will need to get rid of the football quickly. If his primary read is

Notable:

Penn State controls its fate for the Big Ten Championship and a berth in the Bowl Championship Series.

Should the Nittany Lions be able to defeat Indiana and Michigan State the next two weeks, Penn State would represent the conference in the Rose Bowl, if not ranked No. 1 or 2 in the final BCS standings, which will be announced Dec. 7.

If Penn State and Ohio State were to tie for the Big Ten title with 7-1 marks, the Nittany Lions would win the tie-breaker by virtue of their 13-6 win over the Buckeyes in Columbus on Oct. 25.

not there, he needs to either go to his check-down or start running if he has a lane. But, waiting in the pocket leads to unnecessary hits or sacks.

The Lions should be able to play straight power football and pound the ball at the Hoosiers with minimal resistance, especially late in the game.

MH: As you said Nirav, this week has been a focus on fundamentals. Penn State's offensive line struggled against Iowa with picking up blocks and blitzes, particularly in short-yardage situations. Iowa stunted and managed to get some good surges off the line to collapse the pocket and force Clark into some game-changing errors. Indiana has seen this and will also look to throw everything at PSU in order to disrupt Clark and the PSU game plan.

For whatever reason, the coaches came out throwing into a 30 MPH wind, which 'blew' up on them. I think you see a heavier dose of the ground game from the outset with a passing dose thrown in to get more to a balanced attack. Clark needs to be smart with the ball. He had two (one early one late) game-changing turnovers. He needs to settle down and get back into his game. The coaches stripped out the designed runs to protect him after the concussion he suffered at OSU and a shoulder injury. My concern is that this takes away a strong element of his game, and if he needs to be treated with kid gloves, the coaches should strongly consider looking to Pat Devlin.

As you said Nirav, I would go right at Middleton and the Indiana defense. They key is capitalizing on red zone opportunities. This offense needs to get the ball in the end zone and stop settling for field goals. If Indiana has the chance to stick around, that spells trouble.

Defense:

ND: The Hoosiers will bring their 2-headed quarterback monster into Beaver Stadium this weekend as another example of how sometimes more is not always better. Kellen Lewis is the athletic quarterback that can run very well and throw pretty well. His biggest issue is probably his propensity to throw to guys in the wrong colored jerseys. Meanwhile, sophomore Ben Chappell is the prototypical Big Ten passer that is awfully large. The two will surely split time this weekend as Coach Bill Lynch tries to find the one that is most effective against a Lions' defense that really struggled to get at Iowa's Ricky Stanzi last weekend. As the season progresses, Jared Odrick is making quite a push as a potential second team all-conference candidate. He has been getting great pressure up the middle and has been making plays behind the line of scrimmage. Coach Tom Bradley will need to find a way to get Aaron Maybin off to a good start and ready to make some plays.

The Hoosiers have a short but explosive back in Marcus Thigpen. Coming in at a whopping 5'9", Thigpen is a burner. The Lions will need to attack the line, but more importantly tackle effectively. Against Iowa late, Penn State was just getting blown off of the ball by the Iowa offensive line so the Lions will need to find ways to get pressure throughout the game.

Keep an eye on wide receiver Ray Fisher. He's one of the shortest receivers in the Big Ten coming in at 5'9". This is a vast difference from last year when James Hardy was able to reach above Justin King thanks to his superior height. Fisher has been the guy that the Hoosiers like to go to when they get in the red zone. Fisher is able to get a great burst off the line, which is what makes him so strong. With Drew Astorino potentially out for the game, the Lions might turn to D'Anton Lynn more in this game and move Tony Davis back to safety when they want to get Anthony Scirrotto a little rest. It should be interesting to see how Coach Kermit Buggs and Coach Bradley handle that situation.

The Hoosiers have some talent but their offensive line and turnovers have prevented them from making plays in order to stay in games especially considering the number of points the defense is surrendering. Look for the Lions have little difficulty slowing down the Hoosier offensive but still yielding enough big plays to keep the Hoosiers off of the scoreboard in the game's entirety.

MH: Lewis is a dangerous quarterback that mirrors Juice Williams in several ways. The PSU defense has to come out with a similar game plan to Illinois and play containment. With Josh Gaines seeing limited practice this week this pressure will have to come from Maybin and Maurice Evans. I would pull back on the blitzing, given Lewis' ability to break open runs on breakdowns, but if Bradley insists on blitzing, send someone who can get there; Navarro Bowman, Bani Gbadyu or Mike Mauti. Josh Hull has run-stopping ability, but lacks the speed to effectively break into the backfield.

I expect Indiana to run a variety of speed sets with Lewis and Thigpen, which will require discipline on the defensive front. They can't bite on the fakes and jukes since both guys have the wheels to bust open a big run.

The secondary has to tighten down from their Iowa performance and manage the zone gaps more effectively. Stanzi picked apart the defensive backs on a few drives last week, so the corners have to tighten up in coverage and the coaches should consider mixing in some man coverage into the scheme.

Special Teams:

ND: Though Kelly kicked the ball well on a blustery day, the rest of the Lions special teams were sub-par. Maybe it's the lack of early season work, but Jeremy Boone has not been blasting punts like he did last year. And, the Lions were unable to get a good play on a kick of punt return to help flip field position. The Lions will need to improve this aspect of their game against Michigan State and certainly for the bowl game.

MH: The return game needs to get back in gear. Playing the long field game for the PSU offense just opens up the chance for mistakes or stalled drives. PSU has to win that coveted battle for field position and get out of the gate quickly.

Matchup to Kick Back and Enjoy:

ND: Much like the Lions, the guy that got it done on the defensive line last year has been beaten out by someone else. For the Hoosiers, Middleton was a sack machine. But, this year, it is Kirlaw. Kirlaw is a 6'3" defensive end that is second on the team

Darryll Clark will be hoping to get back into early season form as his first season at the starting quarterback position nears an end.

Harvey Levine/FightOnState.com

in tackles and is leading the way with 10.5 sacks on the year. After two games in which the offensive line has struggled, we'll see how they match up against Kirlaw. It should be interesting to watch.

MH: I am going to the other side of the ball. Lewis and Thigpen against the PSU front four. If the Lions can penetrate without the blitz they should be able to snuff out drives quickly, but if they leverage the blitz ineffectively it will open up gaps and allow Lewis to move the ball and gain confidence and comfort.

Keys to the Game:

ND: The Lions still have quite a bit to play for but they must play with desire and they must execute with desire and passion. Failure to do so might not result in a loss this week, but it definitely could next week when the Spartans come calling. So, the Lions need to play with fire and desire to put away the Hoosiers and to start feeling a little better about themselves. The Big 10 title is still within reach.

MH: I think the key is the first quarter. If PSU comes out aggressive and swinging it will show they are focused on the road ahead instead of looking behind in the rearview mirror. If they come out sluggish and somber Indiana will be able to hang around and who knows what will happen. The problem for PSU is that they have not played an impressive first quarter since way back against Oregon State.

Predictions:

ND: Penn State will come back in front of the home crowd and will rebound nicely in this game facing a young Hoosier team. The Lions win but not as big as the early season games.

Penn State 30 Indiana 10

MH: A trip home is just what the doctor ordered after three road contests in four games – brutal. I think you see PSU come out a bit slow, but settle in quickly. The leadership should have them back focused on some big goals once again.

Notable:

Penn State earned its 10th 9-0 start under Joe Paterno and will be looking to earn its 20th season with at least 10 wins under the the Hall of Fame coach.

The last Penn State team to earn at least 10 wins was the 2005 squad, which was 11-1, winning the Big Ten title and beating Florida State in the FedEx Orange Bowl. The Lions were No. 3 in the final polls.

Should the Nittany Lions win a 10th game this year, it would give Paterno multiple seasons with at least 10 wins over five decades:

1960's (2); 1970's (6); 1980's (5); 1990's (5); 2000's (2).

The Nittany Lions are off to their best start since the 1999 squad began the season 9-0 before losing its last three regular season games. Penn State has won at least nine games in a season for the 28th time under Paterno.
